The screenshot shows a Microsoft Office document window with the title "Use Microsoft Office with confidence- accessibility hacks for students". The document content includes:

- A sub-heading: "Use Microsoft Office with confidence- accessibility hacks for students"
- Text: "According to a 2018 survey conducted by non-profit organization Jisc, one in five students use assistive or adaptive technologies, often by choice rather than necessity. What this tells us is that accessible technology is not exclusively a disability issue, but rather a requirement of a diverse digital age which has seen us all develop unique ways of learning and living."
- Text: "Universally designed digital services enables all of us to fulfil our potential, but for those with specific access needs it actually makes certain tasks possible. To mark Global Accessibility Awareness Day on Thursday 16th May 2019 we are sharing a series of ways Microsoft's in-built accessibility features reflect their mission "to empower every person and every organisation on the planet to achieve more", in particular disabled students dealing with deadlines and exams this time of year."
- Text: "According to Studies in Higher Education 95% of disabled students have reported struggling with note-taking, however a 2019 Department for Education survey reveal that only 25% of disabled students were even aware of the assistive technology available through their institution. Free (for students), accessible and mainstream, Microsoft Office 365 can help to fill this gap and break down barriers to independent learning."
- Text: "Read on to discover the ways Word, PowerPoint and more can empower you to create and consume content with confidence:"
- Section: Learning Tools
- Text: "Described as one of the top Dyslexia Apps by Dyslexic Advantage Microsoft's Learning Tools are invaluable to students with learning differences, or any student who has trouble decoding dense text and proofreading essays."
- Text: "Built into Word, OneNote and Outlook, Learning Tool's Immersive Reader improves fluency and comprehension by reading text aloud, breaking words down into syllables and increasing line spacing. Deciphering complicated sentences need no longer be a barrier, as you can optimize fonts to reduce visual crowding, implement grammar highlighting, change the background colour for ease of viewing and turn on focus mode which highlights a document line by line."
- Text: Bonus hack!

The Smart Lookup sidebar on the right shows a search for "Accessibility" with a definition: "Accessibility refers to the design of products, devices, services, or environments for people with disabilities. The concept of accessible design ensures both "direct access" (i.e. unassisted) an...". It also includes a URL: "http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Accessibility" and a "More" link.
